Daddy's Bedtime Story

The Pet Doves Of St. Mark's Square.

"WHO would like a travel story?" asked daddy of two children climbing on his lap. They clapped their hands, so daddy began:

"Italy has one of the most beautiful cities in all the world—"

"Venice!" cried Jack, who remembered other stories.

"It is built on a lot of little islands that rise out of a wonderfully blue sea, and, instead of streets, waterways connect the islands. Long black boats called gondolas are used to carry little boys and girls about instead of the horses and carriages or trolley cars we have here in America."

"When Marco Polo was a little boy, did he ride in a gondola?" asked Evelyn.

"Yes, indeed! Now, Venice is very old and, being on the sea, has always hundreds of interesting boats, both for trade and fishing, lying at her queer wharves and landing places. This sea nearness made Venice very rich, and wonderful buildings, streets, churches, plazas, bridges and statues beautify the city, but I shall tell you tonight of only one, St. Mark's square.

"On the east side is the old Church of St. Mark's, which is so richly ornamented that it looks like a huge jewel box sitting there. Over its lacy doors stand two splendid huge bronze horses so ancient that the Roman emperor Nero used them to trim his gymnasium. The west side is open and looks out to the beautiful sunsets and dazzling blue sea, but on the north side stands a wonderful old clock tower, and every time the hour comes two bronze giants jump out of the tower and strike the hour on a big bell with great bronze hammers. Opposite are pink and creamy marble arc palaces, but the giants and horses are so interesting that every afternoon the square is filled with people to see them and to feed the doves."

"What doves?" cried Jack.

"St. Mark's doves," daddy explained. "Every foot of the great square that people are not standing on is filled with these pretty doves begging for food which the travelers and the children buy. Poor men make a living selling this grain for the pet doves. They are very tame and coo and pose and strut about under people's feet. They will perch on your shoulder, walk down your outboard arm and pick the grains out of your hand, or when a pretty Italian girl hides a grain between her red lips they will perch on her upbeard hand and take the grain from her. The doves belong to the city, and no one thinks of harming them. When they are full they fly away to ornament the niches in the front of St. Mark's, where they make their nests, and the people either eat ice creams at little tables in the square or go home in their gondolas."

"Thanks, daddy," cried the children, with a bedtime haw.

SCHOOL TEACHERS OF MONROE MEET AT NORWALK SOON

Superintendent Haney and Professors Plan Program to Be Given Saturday

SPARTA, Wis., Nov. 8.—(Special)—The first 1915 meeting of public school teachers of Monroe county will be held at Norwalk next Saturday. All teachers in the southern part of the county are expected to attend. A committee consisting of Superintendent M. M. Haney, and Professors A. M. DeWitt, F. C. Bray and F. M. Bray are in charge of the plans and the following program has been arranged:

SOUR STOMACH

When vegetable food ferments it causes sour rising in the throat, the formation of gas in the stomach which distends it and causes pain often extending to the region of the heart and arousing a fear of heart disease. This condition is called acid dyspepsia.

Heartburn, a name applied to a pain in the pit of the stomach, with palpitation of the heart, results from acid dyspepsia.

It is a condition that can be corrected by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to tone up the digestive organs and by a proper selection of food. Send today to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for the diet book "What to Eat and How to Eat." It contains information about the diet in health and sickness and is free on request. It gives complete information regarding the tonic treatment of many forms of stomach trouble with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. There cannot be perfect digestion without a sufficient supply of red blood and there is nothing better than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to enrich the blood and tone up the stomach.

Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

"Whys" of Moves in European War

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—It is probable Lord Kitchener has left England to assume command of all the allies' operations in the near east and to direct in person the beginning of the Balkans campaign. The fact that Kitchener had an audience with King George on Wednesday although the king is ill, and the additional fact that Premier Asquith has taken over temporarily the duties of war minister, signify almost beyond doubt that Lord Kitchener has left Great Britain for a considerable period.

It is not probable he has gone to Russia, for the czar certainly would not consent to British military leadership supplanting Slav control along the eastern front. Nor can Lord Kitchener have set out for France so soon after General Joffre's visit to London for the purpose of consulting with the British war minister. Both the western and eastern fronts of the allies are already under the direction of distinguished leaders. But, there is no one possessing a superior military reputation among the allies' commanders in the near east.

It is reasonable to suppose that the allies may want to consolidate the Balkans, Gallipoli and Egyptian campaigns under a single leadership and in particular, maybe the British empire desires to adopt this course. The three areas of conflict are interrelated and all bear especially on vital British interests. Under these circumstances it would be a natural move for Lord Kitchener to be sent to the near east, with the authority which General Joffre possesses in France and which the czar has reserved for himself in Russia.

Lord Kitchener made his reputation as a military leader in Egypt and he has specialized on all Levantine military problems. Despite the criticism that have been directed against him as war minister, no other commander could be sent to the Balkans who would inspire as much confidence among Britons. If, in fact, Kitchener is now on his way to the Levant, Great Britain has played her highest trump to match the new German lead. Should Kitchener fail, the grave of his reputation will be in the vicinity of his birth. This fact must be his final inspiration to put forth the supremest effort of his career.

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

THE REAL AND ONLY

BY IZOLA FORRESTER

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

When you stand for hours at a ticket office in an elevated station, you get to know your regular people. Besides, Larry had the inquisitive romantic sense, and he often wondered whether some day the girl, the real and only, would walk up and ask him for a ticket, and maybe he'd be absent-minded and let her get by without recognizing his fate.

And after all, it was Marty who noticed her first, but then Marty had a better point of vantage than he did back in the cage. Marty took the tickets and could see everybody up and down the platform. One night about 5:45, as a train pulled out, Marty strolled over and said: "He was right on time tonight, wasn't he?"

"I missed it," said Larry. "What is it?"

"She's been waiting here regular and frequent for three nights now, and he comes at 5:45. Some girl, believe me, Larry."

It was not spoken lightly or jokingly. It was almost solemn, and the next night Larry watched for her. When she came to buy her ticket he wondered how she ever got by the other three nights without the great light of truth breaking in on him. For it was she! He didn't have to be told twice. All he did was look at her. She was slender and lissome. Somewhere Larry had read about girls who were lissome and winsome and the kind that just took the heart out of you without asking.

Her hair was fair, blonde as a child's and wavy, and her eyes were dark brown. They made Larry think of dusky, velvety moths' wings in color—and her mouth just for all the world like a half opening rosebud. He wished she would look up at him, but she went on past Marty to the platform, and he saw that she was waiting.

For three weeks or more Marty and he watched the progress of her romance. Neither one approved of the man. He was too young and sure of himself, too nonchalant, Marty said. That was the word. Nonchalant meant you didn't give a rap whether she was there to meet you or not. Sometimes he was late, but she never was. And finally, when the 5:45 Harlem express pulled in one night, she saw him through the window with another girl, and he didn't get off that night.

She must have been crying, Larry reasoned it out afterward. The steps were icy that night anyway and slippery, but when she turned around to go down to the street she fell, and it was Larry who reached her first and carried her back to a bench in the warm waiting room.

"I'm not a bit hurt," she faltered. "Only shaken up a little bit. I can go home."

Whereof, with great emphasis on the impersonal business responsibility he felt, Larry told her he got off at 6 and would see that she reached her home safely. And Marty whistled as he saw them board the uptown train together when the night ticket taker came on, whistled all unconsciously: "You changed my life with just one smile that day."

I never cared what other girls might say. "Larry heard it floating after them like a benediction that first night. And he did his very best to help fate along. If there had been tears on her lashes when they boarded the train, there was none there by the time he left her at her door up on Eighty-sixth street, near Madison avenue. They had made wonderful strides in acquaintanceship. He had told her he was taking the night law course at the university, and she knew he was born in Cranston, Vermont, and his mother belonged to the D. A. R. It all helped. She was a New York girl, she said, born right over on Lexington avenue, near Gramercy park. They had moved uptown after father died, and she was a stenographer in a wholesale house on Park place.

All the way back to his room, Larry said her name over, Alice Carlson. Perhaps she had inherited that blond spun-gold hair from some Norse ancestor, he thought, and her rare, clear coloring.

Marty was the first to notice the veiling of the wind of romance. She failed to appear on the platform for the 5:45 Harlem express. Several times the young man in gray got off and looked about, but she was not there, and he seemed troubled. Then came a night when he waited around until the 6:10, which Larry always took, and he saw her.

And, just as he approached, Larry tucked her under his lee, so to speak, and put her aboard the train. She was a bit white, but game, with her head uplifted and her lips smiling at Larry, and when they had gone several stations she said:

"Did you see that young man in gray? I—I know him. He's often in our store. He's a salesman."

"Yes," said Larry pleasantly. "Seems to be what we used to call up home sort of spruce looking."

She laughed and shook her head. "I don't know. I don't like that sort. Seems nice to meet somebody, you know? New York's so strange, you almost lose yourself in it."

"You have to keep fearfully busy so you don't get homesick," he laughed down at her. "I sit in that cage and dole out tickets till I want to yell like a Sioux, throw up the job and walk back to Cranston in the Green Mountains. Then I think how I can pass my regents' examination in the spring, hang out my shingle down in one of those marble forty-story caves around lower Broadway, take a post grad up at Columbia while I'm waiting for the big case to trot along, and so I set my teeth and hang on. That's the way to win in anything—you just hang on.

She looked up at him admiringly, her eyes sparkling with interest—looked until something in his own blue eyes brought the color to her face, something that told her plain as any words that he loved her and meant to win by just hanging on and not giving up.

"Mother said she'd like to meet you," she said shyly. "If you're not too busy Sunday evening—"

"I'm not," Larry broke in buoyantly. "But don't be too nice to me or I'll be glad you tumbled that first night."

The wind swept around the corner as they came to the street and she bent to face it, her muff pressed close against her face, her eyes full of a new light.

"I'm awfully glad," she said softly. "What funny little things kind of—kind of change lives around, don't they?"

"They are not funny little things," Larry whispered, holding her for a minute at her door. "They are glimpses at the great machinery. Can't you try to believe that it just had to be, pre-ordained and all that—you to tumble and me to pick you up and he to go by with that other girl—"

"Oh, then you saw him?" She was not angry, only anxious as she looked up at him.

"You don't mind now, do you?" If Marty could only have been there and seen her smile, the tenderest, most adorable smile of admission. "I knew you wouldn't. I understand, but with us two it's different. It's the real thing."

He paused, trying to find wonderful, glowing words of romance to clothe his love in, but somehow they wouldn't come right, and he bent over her again. "Say, little girl, it's a quick, short trip to the city hall for us before Christmas, isn't it? How about it?"

"I don't mind," she whispered, leaning away from his reaching hands into the vestibule. "Good night, Larry."

And Larry stood alone facing the wind, his hands deep in his coat pockets, all the glory of love's surety in his eyes. He had found Only Her, the Real and Only Girl.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens so Naturally Nobody can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

THE CENSORSHIP OF DEMOCRACY

We should like to have a member of the New York board of education
 take us over the reasoning which led
 the board to withdraw permission for a labor banquet in one of the school buildings. From the reason publicly given, we suspect it would be a painful task. They said they didn't like
 the tone of the letter of invitation,
 which seems to argue that the refusal was based upon one of those instinctive reactions frequently
 known as "general principles."

Gentlemen of an ultra-conservative persuasion are much given to panics on "general principles." Anything of a radical suggestion is sufficient to startle the elements of their psychological chemistry into action.
 Although probably the board of education would deny it with all vehement and sufficient sincerity, we suspect the announcement that Frank
 P. Walsh was to speak was the agent
 that started the familiar mental process on this occasion. Mr. Walsh is chairman of the federal industrial relations committee, and he did not spare the probe when Capital was on the stand at the Ludlow investigation and other sessions of his committee. Thus Mr. Walsh earned the title of "demagogue." And that word is the key which unlocks all the
 fears to which the ultra-conservative mind is prey.

The natural parallel to the New York board of education is the rabbit, whose strategy is based entirely on the theory of "safety first."

The incident is not without its ludicrous phase. The Labor Forum's invitation declared it fitting that Mr.

Walsh be "honored in the most democratic place in the world—the American public school building."
 Are we to believe that the New York
 board of education resents the appellation "democratic," applied to its schools?

THE STANDARD OF EXCELLENCE

On the back of a piece of sheet
 music we observe this telling encom-ium of other ditties offered by its publisher: "masterpieces by writers
 whose combined earning power is $100,000 a year."

Simplicity and unconsciousness
 are always delightful. Therefore we maintain that from the standpoint
 of the stylist the line quoted is charming. It is magnificent in its unquestioning assumption that the only touchstone of worth is the dollar.

The dollar standard is a convenient convention. By no other means do we know of can one arrive at a tangible estimate of values with such a minimum of cerebration.
 Simply "how much?" and all things
 fall into their relative places in the scheme of things. But somehow the scheme seems out of drawing when
 the place of music is determined by
 its bank balance.

There is what the news-writers
 like to call a "scathing arraignment-
 ment" in that smug advertisement.
 Would you say it is an indictment
 of the publisher or of the public he was writing to?

BOB'S OLDEST SON RAPIDLY RECOVERING

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 8.—(Special.)—Robert La Follette, Jr., the oldest son of Senator and Mrs. La Follette, who has been ill since last February, is on the road to rapid recovery. The boy, who was confined to his bed for months, is now up and around and is able to operate the automobile. He is still with his mother in Washington and does not expect to return to Madison until February, when he expects to re-
 enter the university. Senator La Follette has high praise for his son and
 for the courage he has manifested in the long illness.

WAUSAU, Nov. 8.—The annual grain show of Marathon county, to be held here the first week in December, will include exhibits of butter and cheese. One of the days
 will be known as "Dairymen's day"
 and another as "Farm crops day."

PRETTY NAVY GIRL TO BE MARRIED SOON

Miss Margaret Bryan.

Miss Margaret Bryan is the daughter of Pay Inspector and Mrs.
 Samuel Bryan, U. S. N., who live at present at Annapolis. The engagement of Miss Bryan to Mr. William C. Rogers, of Phoenix, Arizona, has just been made and the wedding is expected to take place at an early date at the Bryan home at the Naval Academy.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Autumn
 Softly down the wooded glen,
 Tassled with the plummy thistle,
 Steps the Piper Pied again,
 Blowing on his mellow whistle.

Squirrel's bark and call of quail
 Mimics he, the tuneless varlet,
 As he steals along the dale
 Ragged in his gold and scarlet.

Close behind him as he plays,
 Hand in hand, there follow after
 All the little summer days,
 Light of foot and full of laughter.

Arms heaped high with autumn
 spoils,
 Goldenrod and purple aster,
 Caught within the Piper's toils,
 Fast they follow him and faster.

Only down the wooded glen,
 Ravished of his plummy thistle,
 Far and faint is heard again
 The echo of the Piper's whistle!

 Companion.

Waiting at the Church
 George was famous for being late
 at his appointments. He was engaged to be married to a young woman
 in a neighboring city, and when the day of the ceremony arrived, George,
 as usual, did not appear. The bride was on the verge of nervous prostration, when the following telegram
 was received from the missing bridegroom:

"Dear Helen—Missed the early train. Will arrive on the 4:31. Don't get married until I get there.
 George."

Even Exchange

A small boy had been given a penny
 with a hole in it. Handing it to a still smaller companion, he said:

"Jimmie, I dare you to go into
 that store and buy something with
 this penny."

Jimmie was quite willing. Entering boldly, he said:

"I want a doughnut." And taking
 it, he hastily presented the penny.

"Here," said the clerk, "this penny
 has a hole in it."

"So has the doughnut," announced
 Jimmie, triumphantly holding it up.

Vain Conceit

"The only fault I have to find with Kippers is that he has an exaggerated idea of his own importance."

"I hadn't noticed it."

"But it's a fact. Why, he thinks he's the only man on earth who could have married Mrs. Kippers."— Birmingham Age-Herald.

Stuck to Her Story

The judge looked at the prisoner
 and said: "See here, madam, weren't
 you here before me five years ago,
 and didn't you tell me then that you were 30 years old? Now, you tell me again you are 30 years old."

The woman said that she was so,
 and the judge asked her what she

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backachy or have Bladder Trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites
 and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system.
 Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids,
 waste and poison, else you feel a
 dull misery in the kidney region,
 sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour,
 tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids
 and flush off the body's urinous
 waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and
 your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid
 of grapes and lemon juice, combined
 with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive;

WOMEN! HERE IS A MONEY SAVER

Use gasoline to dry clean family's clothes and
 save $5.

Dry cleaning at home is just as simple as laundering. Any woman
 can clean five dollars' worth in fifteen minutes at little cost by getting from the drug store two ounces of solvite and put this in two gallons
 of gasoline, where it quickly dissolves. Then immerse articles to be cleaned; rub a little and in a few moments the gasoline evaporates and
 the articles look bright and fresh
 as new.

You can dry clean silk waists,
 dresses, coats, ribbons, kid gloves,
 satin shoes, evening slippers, shawls,
 belts, yokes, furs, boas, muffs, neck-
 ties, lawns, dimity and chiffon dresses, draperies, fine laces, lace curtains, woolen garments, in fact, any
 and everything that would be ruined
 by soap and water as dry cleaning
 doesn't fade, shrink or wrinkle,
 making pressing unnecessary.

Your grocer or any garage will supply the gasoline and you can obtain two ounces of solvite at the drug store, which is simply a gasoline soap. Then a wash boiler or large dishpan completes your dry cleaning outfit. As gasoline is very inflammable, be sure to do your dry
 cleaning out of doors or in a room
 away from fire or flame, with the windows left open.

meant by coming before him and

 ing one thing once and another thing

Difficult

The adjutant was lecturing to the
 subalterns of the battalion.

"In the field," he said, "it is now
 incumbent upon an officer to make himself look as much like a man as possible."

Everybody laughed.

"That is, I mean," he explained,
 "as much like a soldier as possible."

Not a Real One

"Have you ever let any other man
 kiss you?" he demanded, jealously.

"Never, Henry, never," she replied, demurely. "Only a few college boys."—Life.

Here's an Ideal Man

The prize for optimism must be awarded to a resident of one of the recently flooded suburbs of Erie. An old man was sitting on the roof of his house during the flood, watching
 the waters rise, when a neighbor,
 who possessed a boat, rowed across
 to him.

"Hallo, John," he said, "have all
 your fowls been washed away this morning?"

"Yes, but the ducks can swim."

"Is your corn under the water?"

"Well, they said the crop would be a failure anyhow."

"I see the flood has reached above
 your windows."

"That's all right! Them winders needed washin'."

Taking No Chances

It was the happiest moment of their lives. He had just proposed
 and she had grab—er—accepted him.

Then he took a tiny leather case
 from his pocket and slipped a sparkling circlet on her finger, while she beamed with pride.

"I'm afraid it's rather loose, darling," he murmured. "Shall I take
 it back and have it made smaller?"

The damsel shook her head decidedly.

"No, Rupert," she said calmly.
 "An engagement ring is an engagement ring, even if I have to wear it around my neck."

CHAPTER XXII A Shot on the Sand-bar.

July and August of 1911 were
 months of great fires in the Northland. The swamp home of Kazan and Gray Wolf, and the green valley between the two ridges, had escaped
 the seas of devastating flame; but
 now, as they set forth on their wandering adventures again, it was not long before their padded feet came
 in contact with the seared and
 blackened desolation that had followed so closely after the plague and starvation of the preceding winter.
 In his humiliation and defeat, after being driven from his swamp home
 by the heavers, Kazan led his blind
 mate first into the south. Twenty miles beyond the ridge they struck
 the fire-killed forests. Winds from Hudson's Bay had driven the flames
 in an unbroken sea into the west,
 and they had left not a vestige of life
 or a patch of green. Blind Gray Wolf
 could not see the blackened world,
 but she sensed it. It recalled to her
 the memory of that other fire, after the battle on the Sun Rock; and all of her wonderful instincts, sharpened
 and developed by her blindness, told
 her that to the north—and not south
 lay the hunting-grounds they were seeking. The strain of dog that was in Kazan still pushed him south. It was not because he sought man, for
 to man he had now become as deadly
 an enemy as Gray Wolf herself. It was simply dog instinct to travel
 southward; in the face of fire it was wolf instinct to travel northward. At the end of the third day Gray Wolf
 won. They recrossed the little valley
 between the two ridges, and swung
 north and west into the Athabasca
 country, striking a course that would ultimately bring them to the headwaters of the McFarlane River.

Late in the preceding autumn a prospector had come up to Fort Smith, on the Slave River, with a pickle bottle filled with gold dust
 and nuggets. He had made the find on the McFarlane. The first mails had taken the news to the outside world,
 and by midwinter the earliest members of a treasure-hunting horde
 were rushing into the country by snowshoe and dog-sledge. Other finds came thick and fast. The McFarlane was rich in free gold, and miners by
 the score staked out their claims
 along it and began work. Late-comers
 swung to new fields farther north
 and east, and to Fort Smith came rumors of "finds" richer than those of the Yukon. A score of men at first
 —then a hundred, five hundred, a thousand—rushed into the new country. Most of these were from the prairie countries to the south,
 and from the placer beds of the Saskatchewan and the Frazer. From the far North, traveling by way of the Mackenzie and the Liard, came a smaller number of seasoned prospectors and adventurers from the Yukon—men who knew what it meant to starve and freeze and die
 by inches.

One of these late comers was Sandy McTrigger. There were several reasons why Sandy had left the Yukon. He was "in bad" with the police who patrolled the country west of Dawson, and he was "broke." In spite of these facts he was one of the best prospectors that had ever
 followed the shores of the Klondike.
 He had made discoveries running up
 to a million or two, and had promptly lost them through gambling and drink. He had no conscience, and little fear. Brutality was the chief thing written in his face. His under-shot jaw, his wide eyes, low forehead and grizzled mop of red hair
 proclaimed him at once as a man not
 to be trusted beyond one's own vision or the reach of a bullet. It was suspected that he had killed a couple of men, and robbed others, but as yet the police had failed to get anything "on" him. But along with this bad side of him, Sandy McTrigger
 possessed a coolness and a courage
 which even his worst enemies could not but admire, and also certain
 mental depths which his unpleasant
 features did not proclaim.

Inside of six months Red Gold
 City had sprung up on the McFarlane, a hundred and fifty miles from Fort Smith, and Fort Smith was five hundred miles from civilization.
 When Sandy came he looked over
 the crude collection of shacks, gambling houses and saloons in the new town, and made up his mind that the time was not ripe for any of his "inside" schemes just yet. He gambled

 a little, and won sufficient to buy himself grub and half an outfit. A feature of this outfit was an old muzzle-loading rifle. Sandy, who always carried the latest Savage on the market, laughed at it. But it was the best his finances would allow of.
 Beyond a certain point on the river
 prospectors had found no gold. Sandy pushed confidently beyond this point.
 Not until he was in new country did
 he begin his search. Slowly he worked his way up a small tributary
 whose headwaters were fifty or sixty miles to the south and east. Here and there he found fairly good placer
 gold. He might have panned six or eight dollars' worth a day. With this much he was disgusted. Week after week he continued to work his way
 upstream, and the farther he went
 the poorer his pans became. At last only occasionally did he find colors.
 After such disgusting weeks as these Sandy was dangerous—when in the company of others. Alone he was harmless.

One afternoon he ran his canoe
 ashore on a white strip of sand. This was at a bend, where the stream had widened, and gave promise of at least a few colors. He had bent down close to the edge of the water when something caught his attention on the wet sand. What he saw were the footprints of animals. Two had come down to drink. They had stood side by side. And the footprints were fresh—made not more than an hour
 or two before. A gleam of interest shot into Sandy's eyes. He looked behind him, and up and down the stream.

"Wolves," he grunted. "Wish I could 'a' shot at 'em with that old minute-gun back there. Gawd—listen to that! And in broad daylight, too!"

He jumped to his feet, staring off
 into the bush.

A quarter of a mile away Gray
 Wolf had caught the dreaded scent
 of man in the wind, and was giving voice to her warning. It was a long wailing howl, and not until its last echoes had died away did Sandy Mc-Trigger move. Then he returned to the canoe, took out his old gun, put
 a fresh cap on the nipple and disappeared quickly over the edge of the bank.

STATE OFFICER IS OUT ON BAIL

Myrland Case Is Taken to U. S. Circuit Court on Appeal from Sanborn's Decision

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 8.—The Myrland case will go to the United States circuit court for final settlement. Late Saturday evening, Federal Judge A. L. Sanborn granted a writ of habeas corpus and then after arguments quashed the writ. From this action, Attorney General Owen sued out of writ of error to the United States circuit court on an appeal. The Myrland case promises to be one of the most interesting from a legal standpoint that has arisen in the state. As secretary of the state tax commission, Myrland refused to make public the income tax return of the defunct Valcica Condensed Milk company, giving as his reason that the state law forbids him from doing so. Ralph W. Jackman appeared for the trustees of the milk company and Attorney General Owen and Assistant E. E. Brossard appeared for the tax commission. Myrland was adjudged guilty of contempt by Judge Sanborn, but upon the appeal is released on the furnishing of a bond of $1,000.

COMES TO STATE BOOSTING FAIRBANKS FOR THE PRESIDENCY

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 8.—(Special.)—An effort to interest Wisconsin voters in the probable candidacy of former Vice President Fairbanks for president is being made by E. I. Lewis of Indianapolis. He was here Saturday and had a conference with some of the republicans, leaving for Milwaukee, where he said he intended to meet Gov. E. L. Philipp to talk over the situation with him. According to Mr. Lewis, the Root boom has received a serious set-back as the result of the defeat of the proposed New York constitution of which Root was the sponsor. Lewis says that Fairbanks is underestimated by many who have never met him. He characterizes the former vice president as "very much of a democrat and every inch an American."

PROTEST IS MADE AGAINST BRITISH TRADE TAMPERING

those established rules of international conduct upon which Great Britain in the past has held the United States to account when the latter nation was a belligerent engaged in a struggle for national existence. It is of the highest importance to neutrals not only of the present day but of the future that the principles of international right be maintained unimpaired.

"This task of championing the integrity of neutral rights, which have received the sanction of the civilized world against the lawless conduct of belligerents arising out of the bitterness of the great conflict which is now wasting the countries of Europe, the United States unhesitatingly assumes, and to the accomplishment of that task it will devote its energies, exercising always that impartiality which from the outbreak of the war it has sought to exercise in its relations with the warring nations."

Acknowledges Other Notes

The note is dated Oct. 21 and acknowledges the notes of the British government dated Jan. 7, Feb. 10, June 22, July 23 (two), Aug. 13, and a note verbale of the British embassy of Aug. 6, all of which relate to restrictions upon American commerce. The United States says at the outset that it has delayed answering these notes in the hope that the announced purpose of Great Britain "to exercise their belligerent right with every possible consideration for the interests of neutrals," and of causing "the least possible amount of inconvenience to persons engaged in legitimate trade" would in practice not unjustifiably infringe upon the neutral rights of American citizens. "It is therefore a matter of regret," says the note, "that this hope has not been realized, but that, on the contrary, interference with American ships and cargoes destined in good faith to neutral ports and lawfully entitled to proceed, having become increasingly vexatious, causing American ship owners and American merchants to complain to this government of the failure to take steps to

Make Kitchen Work Easy

This is the age of efficiency.

It is the age of time-saving and labor-saving devices.

Every invention that makes for economy of operation and betterment of output is given a place in the shop or factory.

Why not apply this principle to the home?

An All Gas Kitchen makes housework easier for the wife and mother.

It saves time and labor.

It makes for economy of operation and betterment of output because gas is the most economical kitchen fuel and cooking can be done more satisfactorily with gas than with any other character of range.

Hot water in any desired quantity is practically always available in an All Gas Kitchen. And hot water is needed in every home every day.

Equip your kitchen in the modern, sanitary, convenient, economical way. Let us tell you how it can be done.

prevent an exercise of belligerent power in contravention of their just rights. As the measures complained of proceed directly from orders issued by the British government, and arouse a reasonable apprehension that, if not resisted, they may be carried to an extent even more injurious to American interest, this government directs the attention of its majesty's government to the following considerations."

Note in Paragraphs

Here follow in numbered paragraphs the points made by the United States. Summarized, they are:

The statistics presented by Great Britain to prove an increase rather than a decrease in American trade "fail to take into account the increased price of commodities resulting from a state of war or to make any allowance for the diminution in the volume of trade which the neutral countries of Europe previously had with the nations at war."

Detentions by Great Britain have not been "uniformly based on proofs obtained at the time of seizure, but many vessels have been detained while search was made for evidence." The question has been one of "evidence to support the belief of—in many cases a bare suspicion of—enemy destination, or occasionally of enemy origin of the goods involved."

Attention is directed with regard to search of neutral vessels at sea to instructions issued to naval commanders of the United States, Great Britain, Russia, Japan, Spain, Germany and France from 1888 to the beginning of the present war to show "that search in port was not contemplated by the government of any of these countries."

Destroy Export Trade
An examination of the opinion of the most eminent text writers on the laws of nations shows "that they give practically no consideration to the question of search in ports outside of examination in the course of regular prize court proceedings."

Answering the assertion of Great Britain that the position of the United States in relation to search at sea is inconsistent with its practice during the civil war, the note says this is based upon a "misconception." A careful search of the records "shows conclusively that there were no instances when vessels were brought into port for search prior to instituting prize court proceedings," and that captures were not made upon other grounds than evidence found on the ship under investigation and not upon circumstances ascertained from external sources. It is here that Secretary Lansing appends a copy of the instructions issued to American naval officers on Aug. 18, 1862.

In answer to the British contention that conditions relating to the size and seaworthiness of modern carriers justify bringing vessels into port, there is cited the report of a board of United States naval experts, just made, in which it is declared, that it is not necessary to remove "every package of a ship's cargo" to establish the character and nature of her trade, that the facilities for boarding and inspection of modern ships, are in fact greater than in former times, and that to permit ships to be taken into port "would be a direct aid to the belligerents concerned in that it would release a belligerent vessel overhauling the neutral from its duty of search and set it free for further belligerent operations."

exceptions, came and went, but the laymen remained. Both ministers and laymen succumbed to the spirit of the times and unitarianism and worldliness crept in to lower the standard of the churches' ideals and wither their spirituality and today worldliness, impotency, inefficiency of equipment, dissension, debt and emptiness characterize these churches more fully than any other church of my knowledge in this state. With few noble exceptions, it would be hardly possible to find a group of leading laymen who count for less in the religious forces of the community than the laymen of our churches do at the present time, and this, not because they have no convictions and even promptings in the right direction, but because they are so overshadowed and dominated by forces whose selfish interests are so utterly antagonistic to spiritual churches that they have become both deaf and dumb if not blind, to the creeping paralysis now working such havoc in our churches. Of the ministers, past and present, it was more or less true "Like people, like priest," yet the greater judgment by far must come upon the ministers, whether past or present, for the deplorable spiritual deadness of our present-day churches. Here are some facts to ponder.

Services Discontinued

The Y. M. C. A. has discontinued its Sunday afternoon service for lack of interest and attendance. Two of these churches have also discontinued their Sunday evening services for the same reasons. One church tried a "smoker" in an effort to interest its men in its Sunday evening service, but its free cigars and good stories would not draw. Another church has introduced billiard tables in an effort to interest and hold its Sunday evening constituency and yet another church has seriously considered serving a free lunch at 6:30 Sunday evenings as an inducement for its constituency to attend the evening service. Two or three of the churches have discontinued the weekly prayer meeting, and during the past summer, with one or two commendable exceptions, for weeks at a time several of these churches were closed entirely to the public. Pitiably and humiliating as these facts are, other churches, which have not had, as yet, to resort to these extremities, have no reason to throw stones. The symptoms are only a little more pronounced in one than in the other. Notice the desperate efforts to secure funds in these churches to carry on their work and how little, comparatively, is given to carry the gospel to the ends of the earth. Notice, also, how little money and energy can be secured for church services and work, and how much for social functions and amusements.

Amusements Have Right of Way

On a Sunday evening when the Y. M. C. A. and a number of the churches are closed and the rest of the churches with but a handful in them the amusement houses, the saloons, the dance and billiard halls, are all open and crowded. In the presence of this unparalleled misuse of opportunities by the churches and misuse of the Sabbath day by the selfish forces of evil, the churches stand as impotent weaklings practically saying, "We know that the Sabbath day was given to our race for the rest of body and cleansing of heart and enlightening of mind by the worship of the one true God as revealed in Jesus Christ and we know that the Sabbath is our one great opportunity to bring to bear upon the people the all-purifying and elevating message of the gospel. All this we know and believe, but account for it as you may, we, the churches of La Crosse, have given the right of way to the amusement houses and their allies on Sunday afternoon and evening. We have sold our birthright as a nation and as churches, to the hands of the enemy. Yes, we stay at home or we close our churches to allow the selfish interests of the city to misuse the day to debauch for money our young people when we complacently nurse our slothfulness and self-indulgence." Now, if ever, should these congregations pack their churches on Sunday evening, as well as Sunday morning, both as a saving measure for themselves and as a very tangible protest against the present aggressive and commercialized desecration of the Lord's Day. Will the churches succumb yet more and more or will they in one great act of repentance and consecration arise to the occasion and reassert the precious heritage handed down to them and at such cost from our fathers? To show further the trend of things, recently I had occasion to look up some boys who were missing from our church and Sunday school, and to my unspeakable grief I found that these boys had been employed on Sunday on the golf links. I do not know who the men are who employ these boys on Sunday for such a purpose, but I suspect that they are largely men who could just as well have their exercise on another day. Will not the solemn warning of Christ be heeded by these men? When he said: "But whoso shall offend or shall cause to stumble or lead astray one of these little ones which believe in Me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged around his neck and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea."

Were wealthy and business men in the English churches to consecrate themselves to God and be guided by His word, they would find a willing following among the people and they could in a very short time completely revolutionize the religious and moral condition of this city. I lay the present discouraging situation at their door.

Let them make demands on their pastors for some united effort against the forces of evil, pledging themselves openly to support and encourage them and they will see how quickly the response will come.

Hits False Belief

During the years that I have been here, often have I heard the question asked, "What is the matter with La Crosse?" I can tell you what is the matter with La Crosse. It is the stupid and blind belief of those in authority and influence that a city can prosper by encouraging and fostering institutions that make for waste, immorality, crime and neglect, if not discourage the God-given and tried institutions that make for sobriety, thrift and virtue. Temporal prosperity must be based on sound moral principles and moral principles are the product of spiritual Christianity and as spiritual Christianity dies out in our churches the whole structure of our most cherished hopes are soon found to be on a foundation of sand. La Crosse has been attempting to build on a foundation of selfishness and vice and the results are plainly seen in its material as well as its moral condition.

The drunkenness, the poverty, the vice, the cruelty in the home, the divorces, the crime, and the woe and the expense of it all are only barely touched upon in the public press as an item appears from time to time. Ask Judge Brindley, the police, the district attorney and the Associated

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

The ladies of the North Presbyterian church will be entertained at a coffee at the church parlors on Thursday afternoon. The hostesses will be Mesdames W. B. Horner, A. R. Kempter and William Kathary.

The W. C. T. U. will hold its regular meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Anderson, 1524 Vine street.

The ladies of the First Presbyterian church will hold a rummage sale Saturday at 703 State street.

CHRISTENING PARTY

Thomas Ryan, fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rooney, was christened yesterday afternoon at St. Mary's church. Mr. and Mrs. Rooney entertained at a dinner preceding the christening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Safford and children, Miss Mary Dean and Mr. Thomas Harrison, Mrs. Safford and Mr. Harrison were sponsors for the child.

AFTERNOON RECEPTION

Mrs. W. H. Sanders entertained at a handsome reception at her home Saturday afternoon. The decorations were pink chrysanthemums and smilax in the reception room; roses and other flowers were used in the other rooms. Mrs. D. O. Coate, and Mrs. George Gordon and Mrs. J. N. Moncrief assisted through the rooms. Others assisting were Miss Helen Harrison, Miss Henrietta Martindale, Miss Margaret Currie and Miss Josephine Colwell. Miss Alice Sherwood admitted the guests. One hundred and fifty invitations were issued.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. E. C. Uim entertained at an afternoon party for her daughter, Ruth, in honor of her ninth birthday. A doll dressing contest was the feature of the afternoon. The prize for the most original and prettiest dressed doll was awarded to Miss Katherine Farrand.

SOCIAL BRIEFS

Miss Helen Willen of Terre Haute, Ind., was called here by the illness of her sister, Mrs. F. H. Reiman, who was operated upon at St. Frances hospital Saturday morning. The many friends of Mrs. Reiman will be glad to know that the operation, although a serious one, was successful, and that she is resting a little easier this morning.

Mrs. Barber and daughter, Miss Edith Barber of Warrens, Wis., are guests of Mrs. Law and Mrs. Finch. Mrs. August Grams will entertain on Tuesday and Thursday at cards. Four tables will be played each day. Miss Ruth Atkinson, who was operated upon last week at the La Crosse hospital, is now able to see her friends.

Joseph Check has returned from Eastman, Wis., where he went to attend the funeral of a nephew.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Ritter, a seven pound boy at St. Anne's Home.

William Check has gone to Chicago to attend the music recital given by Fritz Krenzler, while there he will also visit his friend, Emanuel Stupke.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Wing of this city were guests of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Morris of Minneapolis, at a week-end house party.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Glor of Chicago spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Glor's father, Frank P. Hixon.

Charities, the Rescue Mission, and the superintendent and principals of the schools. They can tell you how the poison of wrong doing is permeating and enervating and wrecking homes and youth without number in this community. I have looked in vain for any public protest against this awful havoc and desolation from press, bishop, priest or preacher, church, lodge or club. They all seem to be under the spell of some unseen, but potent demon, that has blinded or struck them dumb with the wand of its vested interests. Will La Crosse be the only city to continue to surrender to the forces of evil? Superior came within fifteen votes of ousting the saloons. In Eau Claire the vote was so close as to scare the saloon keepers to a better observance of the laws. What Milwaukee, even, led by its brave chief of police, who by the way, is a good deacon in the Lutheran church, has recently done, we all know. Is there not enough moral fiber left in La Crosse to suppress the infamous road houses that girdle our city, and develop such Christian sentiment as will safeguard the boys and girls and be felt in every home in our community? I am of the opinion that city and county officials prefer a healthy moral atmosphere where it is easy to do right and difficult to do wrong, but as that kind of atmosphere is not produced in sufficient quantity by the churches to reach them in their official positions, they have breathe constantly the atmosphere of the vicious and the lawless and unless fortified by a great deal more religion than the average of them seem to possess, they naturally succumb to the influences with which they have to do, and gradually, they come to act if not to believe, as if that were the dominant and only element with which they, in discharge of duty, have to deal. What we need is such a volume of healthy moral sentiment that the officers will feel and realize that far more good men and women are watching and supporting them than of the vicious and lawless element.

Blames the Churches

In the last analysis I charge our English speaking churches, by their lack of genuine spirituality and of unselfish service, with being responsible for the greater part of the low moral tone of the community and its consequent disastrous results in business as well as in character. The Lutheran and Catholic churches have inherited other traditions than ours and to them we should set an example of genuine spiritual Christianity that makes itself seen and felt not in creed only, but in character and conduct. We are not guided by public opinion, ancient custom, or the mere impulses of men as to what is true and profitable but by what the plain teaching of the word of God sets forth. The founders of this republic were guided implicitly by the light that shone more and more from the infallible Word; and the English Protestant churches, being their direct descendants, are in a special sense the sworn custodians of this heritage and whenever these churches prove untrue to this principle, it shows itself every time in the low moral tone of the community. The Lutheran and Catholic churches have better attendance in proportion to their population than the English churches, but the moral effect in their lives, as a whole, is not what one might expect from their more loyal church attendance.

When all churches will demand that the causes of poverty and crime are removed a new era of peace and good will will dawn among men.

Personally, I consider any pastor or preacher, Catholic or Protestant, a grand counterfeit, a colossal sham, a consummate hypocrite, who does not work day and night to remove from his people the cause of their drunkenness and misery and encourage them in sobriety and godliness by his own unmistakable example. Time was when ministers, as well as others, were ignorant of the poisonous effect of alcohol, but now, with the concentrating light of science and industrial efficiency exposing this delusion, there is left no excuse for any intelligent man from knowing his plain duty. "This is the condemnation that light is come into the world."

The various churches, Protestant and Catholic, have, and probably always will have, differences on matters of theology and administration, but these differences should not be allowed to stand in the way of a common effort to safeguard the lives of the poor and the youths of this city, and to make the moral atmosphere one of helpfulness and strength instead of, as now, one largely of peril and often of ruin. I will any day gladly follow Catholic or Protestant that will join forces for the moral betterment of this community. Whatever the other English churches may do in the future—and God bless them in any gospel work they undertake—I, for myself am resolved as never before to preach the gospel, to announce to the people what the omnipotent Christ, the Savior of the world, is still willing and able to do in the lives of men who surrender themselves to Him. I will resort to no plan or method which is not distinctly biblical and spiritual and I gladly risk the future of work here on the plain unvarnished proclamation of a once crucified Christ, but now exalted to the right hand of the Father, and who takes away the sin of the world.

I have already inaugurated prayer meetings and bible classes and I am preaching a series of Sunday evening sermons, all calculated to touch the hearts and consciences of men, and to open their eyes to the true spiritual and moral condition as we find it just now right here in our midst. If all the other churches would inaugurate some such campaigns for this winter and in utter dependency upon God for his blessing, by next summer we might accomplish for La Crosse such a change of spiritual and moral conditions as would make our city as choice for the character and conduct of its people as it is now for its location and scenic beauty.

FORGERY CHARGED TO BRICKLAYER ARRESTED TODAY

J. P. Powers Taken Into Custody Here on Warrant Presented by Evansville Officer

J. P. Powers, a bricklayer employed on the new addition to the St. Francis hospital, was arrested this morning on a warrant charging forgery, which was brought to La Crosse by F. W. Gillman, assistant chief of police of Evansville, Wis. Gillman left at noon today for Evansville with Powers.

Powers is alleged to have passed checks in amounts ranging up to $15 at Cedar Falls, Wis., Prairie du Chien and Evansville. The checks were signed variously J. P. Parker and L. P. Davis, while Powers went under the name of Perkins, although at the hospital work he was known by his proper name.

cases were set for trial, and it became evident that the term would not be a short one. Several of the larger cases were continued. Judge Higbee announced that Judge George Clementson of Lancaster would try two of the cases in his place here November 22. They are L. J. Rosenberg vs. W. F. Frank, C. E. Seller, H. A. Salzer and John C. Toeller, and Mrs. Ida Micksch vs. Harold May, whose motorcycle killed Mrs. Micksch's husband. A jury at the last court term returned a verdict against Mrs. Micksch. She was granted a new trial.

The trial of Harry Ward, charged with stealing an automobile belonging to the General Motor Car company, will be put on at the close of the Robertson trial this afternoon. Attorney C. H. Schweizer has been appointed to defend him. Other cases booked for trial today are John McGarrity vs. The Northwestern railroad; Elizabeth C. Gordon vs. the Burlington railroad and the village of DeSoto; Charles Karnetz vs. Emil Hamker; Theodore J. Nordlie vs. L. J. Schams; James F. Stras vs. Burlington railroad, and W. C. Clinger vs. the Modern Steam Laundry company.

Two Criminal Cases

Criminal cases booked for trial at this term are State vs. John Harnish, and State vs. Leo Coady. Civil cases for trial aside from those on today's calendar are Elizabeth Weeks vs. T. Weeks; Ida Micksch vs. Harold May; Roy Wakeman vs. Edward Wimmer; Christina Erickson vs. Tollef Evjen and Harry Evjen; Alma Owens vs. Ernest Owens; Jennie Alma and John Weisman vs. George Childress; Moses Schoenberg vs. A. Lump Weisman Suits

The two suits against George Childress instituted by Mr. and Mrs. John Weisman, who asked the combined sum of $15,000 were made one issue by Judge Higbee, who contended that the facts in both cases were the same. Childress struck Mrs. Weisman with an automobile several months ago. Attorney W. F. Wolf, who will defend Childress, intimated that the case would probably be continued over the term.

Two suits against the city of La Crosse, brought by John Schnell and Theodore Kienhans, have been settled and were this morning struck from the calendar. Three suits against the Milwaukee railroad, brought by

DAY-OLD CABINET SHOWS SIGNS OF SHORTLIVEDNESS

Refusal of Portfolio Taken to Indicate War Party's Determination to Dictate Policy

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Greece's new cabinet, formed yesterday, already shows signs of collapse. M. Michellidis refused the portfolio of public instructions today.

Except M. Skouloudis, the new premier, who consented to act also as foreign minister, Michellidis was the only new man chosen, the rest of the cabinet consisting of hold-over members of the Zaimis regime. He was chosen because it was believed he would be acceptable to ex-Premier Venizelos, the war party leader.

His refusal to act is regarded as indicative of the war group's determination to dictate Greek policies.

Athens advices have not yet explained why Premier Zaimis, whom King Constantine wished to remain in office, was finally eliminated, but it is taken for granted that Venizelos, with his majority in parliament, convinced him that he could make the post impossible for him, but agreed to tolerate Skouloudis, on account of the latter's known strong friendship for the entente powers.

Attempt at Compromise.

Skouloudis announced, when appointed, that although it was not his purpose to throw the Greek army into the Balkan struggle, his attitude would be one of "very benevolent neutrality" toward the allies.

The king's appointment of Skouloudis as premier was an evident attempt at a compromise with Venizelos and the war party, since it did not involve a dissolution of parliament, which Venizelos declared he had no right to order under the circumstances. It fell far short, however, of meeting Venizelos' wishes—Greek participation in the war.

It is taken for granted here that Constantine would not have acted as he did if Venizelos had not agreed to tolerate the Skouloudis ministry for the time, but it seems clear also that this consent must have been a very grudging one.

Situation Critical

The Greek situation is looked on by diplomats as still highly critical, with prospects that the country will finally have to join the allies or that Constantine's throne will be in serious danger.

The new cabinet, as announced in Athens messages, is as follows:

Skouloudis, premier and minister of foreign affairs.

Michellidis, minister of public instruction (portfolio refused).

Rhallis, minister of justice and communications (hold-over from the Zaimis cabinet).

Gounaries, minister of the interior (hold-over).

Theotokis, minister of national economy (a new post created for Theotokis, who was formerly minister of public instruction).

Yanakis, minister of war (hold-over).

Countouriotis, minister of marine (hold-over).

Dragoumis, minister of finance (hold-over).

FRENCH SHIP WITH MUNITIONS ABOARD IS AFIRE AT SEA

Captain Sends Wireless Saying He Considered the Liner in No Great Peril

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The French liner Rochambeau, which sailed from New York Saturday with 265 passengers, is on fire at sea. A wireless message telling of a blaze which broke out in the bunkers of the ship was received from Captain Juhan this afternoon.

The Rochambeau carried a heavy cargo of war munitions and supplies of all sorts destined for the allies. Just before she sailed last Saturday, a bomb is said to have been found in a sugar bag about to be placed in one of her holds. Last December four men were arrested at New Orleans in an alleged conspiracy to board the Rochambeau. In her cargo were 451 cases of cartridges, 1,000 cases of cartridge shells, 20 cases of rifles and machine guns, a large number of automobiles and 7,200 rolls of wire for the allied armies.

The Rochambeau, belonging to the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique or French line, is a steel turbine steamship of 12,678 tons. Her passengers on this trip included 115 first cabin and 100 steerage passengers. The crew numbers about 150 officers and men.

The message follows:

"Flames in reserve bunkers. Spontaneous combustion. Think not dangerous. If cannot control will go into Halifax. Otherwise continue into Bordeaux."

LIGHT COMPANY APPEALS RULING

Water Levels Fixed by the State Commission Are Questioned by Circuit Court Action

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 8.—Action was brought here this morning in the circuit court by the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company, Eau Claire, appealing the decision of the state railroad commission in fixing the levels of water in Bear lake, Chippewa county, and Rest lake, Barron county. It is claimed in the complaint that the water levels were fixed so low that the property rights were confiscated and that the commission exceeded its power in taking such action.

The complaint is so drawn that it can be appealed to the United States supreme court and it is thought that in case it is appealed the validity of the entire water power act will be challenged.

SEVENTY-FIVE ARE NEEDED TO PRESENT "BIRTH OF A NATION"

Big Symphony Orchestra and Battery of Sound Effects Accompanies Picture

THIRTY MEN WORK ON STAGE

All of Music and Effects Synchronized by Ingenious Plan with Screen Action

A company larger than carried by most musical comedy or dramatic shows will be required to present "The Birth of a Nation" when the famous Griffith masterpiece comes to the Majestic theater the week of November 14. Not the actors in the picture are referred to in this company, but actual individuals in the flesh. Seventy-five men are required to stage the motion picture properly, to work the sound effects and perform other duties incidental to creating the wonderful illusion of reality which grips every one who sees the drama.

Symphony Orchestra

In the first place, there is an orchestra of twenty-two pieces—a real symphony orchestra with instruments not ordinarily seen in theaters. A harp, bassoons, oboes, French horns, kettle drums and the like make up the orchestra, for the first requirement of music is that it shall not be blaring and obtrusive. It supplies a setting of soft harmony or martial rhythm for the action of the play. It is subordinate, always, melting and blending into the general effect without making any demands for attention which could detract from the interest of the picture. It has its own leader—an experienced director, and in his turn he is subordinate to a sort of master of ceremonies, the picture director, whose position corresponds to that of the stage director of a dramatic company.

Carload of Effects

Some idea of the elaborateness and completeness of the production may be gained from the statement that, while the picture itself, in its twelve reels, can be shipped from town to town of its route by express, a baggage car seventy feet long is required to transport the paraphernalia by which the appropriate sound effects are rendered during the production. Six men, experts with the effect equipment, travel with this car, to install the apparatus and superintend its use during the picture. Many of the devices are patented, having been invented especially for the use of "The Birth of a Nation," and they practically fill the stage behind the picture screen on which the action takes place. Cannon roaring, horses thundering over turf or along hard roads, battle pandemonium—all these and many more unusual sounds are faithfully reproduced by the battery "effects," and thirty men are needed on the stage for their operation. For the most part the thirty are "supers," hired for the engagement of the picture in each town.

The Timing System

With the complicated machinery of the "effects" it becomes a matter of considerable ingenuity to have them produced at the instant when the action on the screen calls for them. The men who work the sound producing apparatus are, of course, behind the screen. They are out of sight of the picture. And so an ingenious system of synchronizing has been perfected. It extends even to the orchestra, so that not a note is out of place throughout the picture.

The synchronizing is worked through a system of colored lights manipulated by the picture director, who occupies a place from which he watches the picture incessantly. As each scene flashes upon the screen he presses a button upon the key-board before him, the corresponding colored light wink its signal to the director of the orchestra and the superintendent of the mechanical effects, and long training brings their forces into instant action.

Other details of the production are worked out with the same care. The picture, for instance, is projected by two special machines, and a force of three operators and electricians does the work. Those who witness the picture will notice an indescribably soft texture to the images which move about the screen. It is obtained by the use of special lenses in the projection machine. That there may be no distortion or unpleasantness to those who see the picture from the front rows of the house, five different sets of lenses are carried, one of which can produce the same effect in every sized theater, or on every sized screen.

Even in the "front of the house" care has been taken to see that every detail is in keeping. The girl usher in the Majestic will be garbed in pretty gowns of the ante-bellum period, hoop skirts, poke bonnets and all.

A special stage setting will also be provided, so that the picture screen will seem to be set in a bivouac, with stacked muskets and campfire glowing to complete the illusion.

AUGUST DITTMAN DIES

August Dittman, 61, 1008 Vine street, died Sunday afternoon at his home. Mr. Dittman, who until a few years ago was active in his occupation of blacksmith, was born in Dubuque. Six children survive: Mrs. R. Hawkins, Frank Dittman, and the Misses Sophia, Ruth, Caroline and Charlotte. Two brothers also mourn his death, Fred and William Dittman of this city. The funeral will be held the house, Rev. Julius Gamm officiating.

CAMPAIGN OPENED FOR BETTERING OF LABOR CONDITIONS

Permanent Committee on Industrial Relations Is Headed by Walsh

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Labor's first great concerted campaign to better the conditions of the man who toils in America will be directed by the new permanent committee on industrial relations formed here today.

Every branch of organized and unorganized labor will be represented in the new body, Frank P. Walsh, who is to head the committee, said today. Men associated with Walsh when he was chairman of the federal commission on industrial relations and such men as Amos Pinchot and Frederic C. Howe of labor sympathizers, have accepted membership in the committee which will open headquarters in Washington and begin an active fight for legislation from congress.

WOLGAST TRIES TO CHANGE BOUT DATE

Kannia Wires The Tribune Threat of Commission Action Causes Him to Remain in Line

That Ad Wolgast probably is possessed of considerable respect for the Wisconsin Athletic commission is evidenced by an attempt yesterday to have the date for his appearance here, November 17, set back two days, that he might fight at Atlanta, Ga., the night of the 16th, according to W. L. Kannia, matchmaker of the local club, wiring THE TRIBUNE from Appleton today.

Wolgast was told, so Kannia says, that arrangements already made for the coming show would make it highly inconvenient to postpone the bout and that if he were to cancel, the fight would be called off and he would be hailed before the state boxing commission, which recently dismissed charges against him growing out of his failure to appear here for the last fight.

Wolgast, it is claimed, immediately wired that he would fill the date.

AGED GRANDMOTHER

So Weak She Could Hardly Stand—Made Strong by Vinol

Right here in La Crosse we have seen such excellent results from Vinol that it is a pleasure to know it is doing so much good for old people in other parts of the country.

Woodbridge, N. J.—"My Grandma was recovering from the gripe and was so weak she could hardly stand, and as she keeps house for my father and myself, she could not get around at all. She had taken cod liver oil and many other medicines, but nothing seemed to do her any good. At last we heard of Vinol and tried it, and Grandma commenced to feel better right away, and got strong very soon, so she gets around as well as ever. We all praise Vinol for it is a splendid medicine." Myrtle H. Bunn.

The reason Vinol is so successful in restoring strength to the aged is because of the rare combination of tonic iron, the curative medicinal extracts of fresh cod's livers, beef peptone and mild native wine. It supplies iron to the blood, quickens the appetite, aids digestion, promotes proper assimilation of food, and enriches the blood, and brings back the strength of renewed health. PASS USED TO ADVANTAGE

Aerial Game Only Chance
of Pointers to Penetrate the La Crosse
Defense

The La Crosse normal football team fought its way one notch nearer the conference championship last Saturday by shutting out Stevens Point on their own field 28 to 0. The local team played a strong, steady game especially during the later periods, and relied for its gains on straight football exclusively. On the other hand, Stevens Point found that its only opportunity to gain was by the use of the forward pass, which they executed successfully throughout the entire game. During the first ten minutes of play, La Crosse was outplayed, but they soon braced up and found its own goal endangered only once during the entire period, this in the second quarter, when the Pointers recovered the ball after a fumble by Grausnick on his own twenty-five yard line. However, La Crosse held its opponents for their downs and Strum was enabled to punt to safety. Pope was the only man able to gain at all through South's line. He starred for the easterners.

The line-up for LaCrosse had to be changed considerably throughout the play because of slight injuries and previous weaknesses. The condition of La Fromboise did not enable him to stay the four quarters. He was replaced by Thompson. About the middle of the game Coburn at center had his neck twisted and Grower took his place. A shift was also made in the backfield when Skemp was removed from quarter. Strum took his place at the pivot, and Grounds was sent in at left half. The last combination worked very effectively, as evidenced by the two touchdowns during the last quarter. La Crosse was 100 per cent efficient in kicking goals. La Fromboise booted the ball between the posts three times after touch-downs, and Grausnick also sent the ball over for one point after the last score.

Incidentally, as predicted in this paper, La Crosse won by four touch-downs, which the comparative score had called for.

Seconds Lose
The normal seconds had a little surprise party of their own on Saturday afternoon. The Preston Normal-high school eleven, with whom the game had been cancelled, arrived on the noon train, so it was up to the Seconds to stage a game. Some of the stars had accompanied the first team to Stevens Point. Other players had been out last week for the first time, and the remainder were still suffering from the effects of the late party at the normal on Friday night. At that, Moore's scrubs held the heavy Minnesotans to a score of thirty-nine in sixty minutes of play. The La Crosse team played a steady game without its regular quarter, but the dashing backfield of Preston proved too much. The small group of spectators who had been attracted to the game by the noise, witnessed some of the prettiest passing seen on the field this year, one time in particular in the third period, when Tollefson of the visitors speared a long forty yard pass after running through the La Crosse team. The game was marred by scrapping on both sides. Coach Moore and Coach Van Steeg of Preston alternated as referee and umpire. The Prestonsites beat up the Southern Minnesota University of Austin 75 to 0 last Saturday, so it seems they would have been more of a match for the first team than for the seconds. H. Pooler at full back for Preston was the individual star of the game, nipping off three touchdowns. Tollefson, Kruppenbacher and Frasier also scored. Their goal was never in real danger. Enzie kicked three out of six goals.

HIGH SECONDS ARE VICTORS AT CASHTON IN A ROUGH GAME

One Point Missed from Touchdown Spelled Defeat for Home
Team

In a very loose game with many fumbles and much dirty work the high school seconds defeated Cash-ton by one point, 7 to 6. More than half the La Crosse players had cut lips or a nose bleed or both before the game was over and Cashton received their full share of the slugs. The referee was capable, watching the ball well, but he could not see every thing and as there was no umpire on hand, the dirty work ran its course with few penalties.

The play, however, was fast and entertaining. The Cashton line, outweighing La Crosse 15 pounds to the man, was too solid for any success at line plunging, the La Crosse offense consisting entirely of end runs. With Cashton it was the other way. Very little was gained around the strong La Crosse ends and tackles but H. Elner gained consistently through the center. The first quarter was about even, both teams being forced to punt often. The second period was all for the second team. Twice they carried the ball to within ten yards of the goal but there lacked the necessary punch to put it over. They finally scored when Jenks picked up a fumble and ran 30 yards for a touchdown. Bleakley kicked goal.

In the third quarter also the seconds outplayed Cashton but the fourth period looked bad for them. Cashton recovered a fumbled punt and after being held for three downs passed to Berg for 30 yards, taking the ball to the two-yard line. H. Elner went over. The kick for goal struck one of the uprights. Cashton said it then bounced in but the referee declared that it went outside. Cashton tried hard but were held and the game ended with no more scoring.

The lineups:
La Crosse—Evans, le; W. Blatter, rt; Marshall, lg; Bleakley, c; Schick, rg; Casperson, rt; Pratt, re; Rype, qb; Jenks, rh; Burroughs, fb; Kevnfi lb.

Cashton—Sweiger, le; Misna, lt; B. Elner, lg; Perso, c; Cary, lg; Vit-cenda, rt; Larson, re; Berg, qb; Campbell, lb; H. Elner, fb; Erick-son, rh.

Summary—Touchdowns, Jenks, H. Elner; goal from touchdowns, Bleakley; subs, Cashton sharo in Bleakley.
Substitutes—Cashton, Aberton for Larson; La Crosse, Dickens for Burroughs. Referee, Jefferson (Lawrence, Linesman, Erickson (L. C. N. S.)

HARVARD SHATTERS TIGER HOPES FOR EASTERN HONORS

Crimson Outplays Princeton
to Greater Extent
Than the Score
Indicates

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8.—Harvard university's football team defeated the Princeton eleven, 10 to 6. It was the fourth consecutive victory for the Crimson over the Tigers since 1912 and it shattered all hopes of the Orange and Black for the 1913 Eastern football championship.
Notwithstanding the apparent closeness of the score, the honors of victory belongs chiefly to Harvard, for the contest, considered as a whole, was between the Crimson team as a combination and the individual scoring ability of Tibbott's goal kicking toe. Not once during the entire sixty minutes of play was Princeton, with its vaunted attack, able to batter the Harvard eleven back across the Crimson goal line.

STAGG'S MEN AND GOPHERS TO STAGE BIG GAME SATURDAY

If Maroons Win They Will Be Clean-cut Champions of the Conference

BY J. P. YODER
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Chicago, leading all conference football teams,
with a victory in every game so far,
will get the supreme test at Minneapolis next Saturday. The Maroons
are booked for a go with Minnesota
on that date.

It will be the "big game" of the day in the west, for on its outcome will depend whether the big nine is to have a clear cut champion or whether the dopesters may have to figure out the champions by mathe-matics and comparative scores. Chi-cago's defeat would mean gumming up the works considerably.

A victory for Minnesota would mean the Gophers still have a chance at the title, for Chicago still has to play Illinois—a team that will prove a difficult proposition for Chicago. The only other game next Satur-day that will have a bearing on the title race is that between Wisconsin and Illinois at Urbana. Illinois is favored to win, and should the expect-ed happen Illinois must be consid-ered in the running until the game with Chicago on Stagg field on No-vember 20.

The only other conference game next Saturday is Northwestern and Indiana. The former's comeback against Missouri Saturday makes it look as though the battle next Sat-urday will be a good one.

MICHIGAN DRUBBED BY CORNELL TEAM

Yost's Men Get Worst Beating in Years at Hands
of the Eastern Wonders

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 8.—Outplayed and outclassed, Michigan on Saturday went down in defeat before the powerful Cornell eleven on Ferry field, 34 to 7. The Wolverines never had a chance. Using off tackle plays and straight line plunges, the Ithacans tore the Wolverine line to pieces and made marches resembling the old time assaults for most of their touchdowns.

Michigan is represented by one of its weakest teams in years. Even Johnny Maulbetsch, last year's All-American halfback, did not receive enough support to penetrate the Corn-ell line.

Notre Dame Beats Army
WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The Army lost to Notre Dame on Satur-day, 7 to 0, in a well played and hard fought game. The Army showed a weak offense and none of the cadets backs could gain consistently through the Notre Dame line, except Orl-phant, who played his usual star-game. The Army forwards were out-played most of the time, and its wings were woefully weak.

Indians Lose to Chicago
CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—The Universi-ty of Chicago, with a team composed chiefly of substitutes, easily defeated the Haskell Indians here on Saturday 35 to 0.

YALE SUCCUMBS TO BROWN ON GOAL FROM THE FIELD

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 8.—A neat field goal from the twenty-two yard line by Captain Andrews in the third quarter gave Brown its second victory over Yale in twenty-two years on Saturday, the score being 3 to 0. It was the third successive defeat and the fourth this season for Yale.

MUSICAL SKETCH HEADS NEW BILL

Latest Song Hits and a Charming Little Love
Story Feature "No
Trespassing"

"No Trespassing," a musical play-let in two scenes, is offered by Louis Winsch and Josephine Poore as the headliner of five vaudeville acts at the La Crosse theater the first half of this week in which clever comedy, music, dancing and novel acrobatics are dispensed in an entertaining fashion. Winsch and Poore offer some of the latest song hits and they act a pretty little love story, but comedy they inject frequently in big doses adds in the generosity of the loud applause the audience gives them. The act has a quantity of gorgeous scenery.

Yesterday's matinee audience gave Fred "Go-Get-Em" Rogers, blackface comedian, a royal sendoff. Rogers is a negro, and the number he offers is complete. Rogers is simply a roar. He can sing in highly comic negro fashion, and he tells funny stories while the laughing almost drowns out his voice.

Math Brothers and Girlie might be called "headliners" on almost any vaudeville bill, and they make a de-cided hit at the local playhouse with a program of clever singing, nifty dancing of a new style, and a snatch or two of instrumental music. They present themselves in novel cos-tumes.

Gliding across a special floor laid on top of the boards of the La Crosse theater stage, in every posture known to the expert roller skater, Joe Ken-nedy, "A Graduate of Skatology," opens the bill. Kennedy offers an in-novation in roller skating with a line of humor that strikes the notion of the audience.

Nuess and Eldrid close the bill with an acrobatic skit, "The Yap-hank Guardsmen." Their number is a novelty in vaudeville and is ap-preciated by the La Crosse audiences.

SPOTLIGHTS

"POTASH AND PERLMUTTER"
"Understand me," says the creator of "Mawrus" in "Potash and Perlmutter," which delightfully returns to the La Crosse theater Thursday, November 11, "I do not know for sure, but I would say there is no such thing as Hebrew humor. Poetry, yes; no people have more; wit, yes, su-perb, invincible wit. But humor, I'm uncertain. I doubt if in the ordinary sense of the word humor is a natural product of the Jewish race."

"But, when it comes to creating humor on the stage, the Jew leads easily. The awkward part of a Jew's humor is that he is almost in-variably the butt or victim of him-self. He can therefore get himself into more absurd or laughable sit-uations than men of any other race."

"Take Mawrus Perlmutter for ex-ample. Mawrus is a fine type of the young American Jew. There is not the slightest touch of the buffoon about him. He has traveled and mixed with people. He uses words for the most part correctly."

"Everybody laughs at 'Potash and Perlmutter.' I do myself, except when I look at my partner, 'Abe.' Then I don't know whether to laugh or cry. 'Montague Glass' has given us real, living men—eternal types of an eternal race. That is why 'Potash and Perlmutter' is so deeply enshrined in the hearts of thousands of play-goers. It is the most human play of the last decade."

Seats for "Potash and Perlmutter" will be placed on sale tomorrow morning.

ERTLE COMES OUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Johnny Ertle of St. Paul, who claims the bantamweight championship as a re-sult of his winning from Bud Wil-iams on a foul, makes his New York debut tonight against Abe Friedman, a local boy.

Foreign Markets

New York Stocks
NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Price changes were irregular at the opening of the Stock exchange today, several war stocks showing losses. United States Steel opened at 85 3/4, off 1/4; General Electric was down 3/4 at 177 and Crucible Steel lost 3/4 at 73 1/2. Trading was active. Baldwin Locomotive and Maxwell Motors were weak and yielded fractionally in early trading.

Prices advanced during the opening hour. Canadian Pacific was the leader, gaining 2 3/4 to 185 3/4 on Canadian buying. Total sales were 215,000.

A rally in both railroads and industrials marked the second hour's trading. Bethlehem Steel, however, sold at 42 1/2, off 9 1/2 points from Saturday's close.

At 12:30 Crucible Steel sold at 80, up 5 1/4; Westinghouse at 70 3/4, up 1 1/4; United States Steel at 86 3/4, up 3/4, and Erie at 43 1/4, up 3/4. The market broke sharply in the late afternoon, closing weak. Crucible Steel dropped five points.

PADEREWSKI'S "SAD EYED BOY" FROM TREMPPEALEAU TO GIVE RECITAL HERE

PLAYED FOR THE FAMOUS POLE IN PRIVATE CAR HERE

Appearance Here Recalls
Incident Which Won Him
Support and Friendship
of the Master

D. A. X. Johnson, the one-armed pianist of Trempealeau who, educated under the patronage of Ignace Paderewski, recently took New York by storm in a recital which followed the completion of his studies in the Frank Damrosch Institute of Art, New York, will give a recital at the State Normal school on the evening of December 1. There is a striking physical resemblance between Mr. Paderewski and his young protegee.

Considerable interest attaches to the home-coming of Mr. Johnson, because it was at La Crosse that Paderewski discovered his blonde protegee under circumstances so novel that the story has been published throughout the world.

Arrangements for the recital are about to be announced by Mr. Homer Cotton, director of things musical at the normal.

The engagement of Mr. Johnson, who will play some selections of his own composition, and who is accompanied by a vocalist who will render songs written by Mr. Johnson, revives the story of his meeting with the famous Pole at the Milwaukee depot in 1909, and as he relates the circumstance, brings to light hitherto untold phases of that now famous incident.

Mr. Johnson was playing in a motion picture theater in Racine when Paderewski's Wisconsin itinerary was announced. He wrote the pianist, asking permission to play before him. Although he received no answer, Mr. Johnson, then young and diffident, came to La Crosse on the day of Paderewski's recital.

Girl Friends Cheer Him
Arrived here he looked forward to the ordeal with faint heart, and announced to Miss Mary Klosehlm, 502 South Eighth street, that he would give up the idea of seeing the great man. Miss Klosehlm was deeply disappointed and urged him to go on with his plan. She took the subject up with Miss Julia Hoffman, 922 State street. These two young women, acquaintances of Mr. Johnson, had recognized his genius before others had discovered it. They insisted that the young musician "face the music," and went with him to the depot.

There Mr. Johnson got the ear of an attendant and was told the only chance of seeing Paderewski would be at the theater after the performance.

Meets the Great Man
Mr. Johnson tells the story from this point.

"I was greatly perturbed. That he had not answered my letter was to me evidence that Paderewski would not receive me. I fairly trembled into the theater and found my way to the great pianist's dressing room. The door was open and I waited outside. Mrs. Paderewski was opening her husband's mail, and as I approached I could not help overhearing as she read. She was reading my letter, evidently just received. This took a great weight from my shoulders. I had not been denied. But even with this new hope I could not find courage to accost the artist as he brushed against me in passing.

"A moment later the man to whom I had talked indicated me and Mr. Paderewski came over and spoke to me. I found my voice. He was kind, in an abrupt way, and seemed interested in me, but he told me he could not hear me until he reached Chicago. He shook hands, and although he might as well have said 'Good-bye' as 'Chicago,' I left the theater thrilled with joy at having touched the hand of the master.

Saved by Accident

"Here a little accident intervened to give me the opportunity that seemed to have been lost. A stranger in the city, instead of turning west toward the depot, upon emerging from the alley back of the theater I turned east and wandered into the residence section. Soon I discovered my error

Best Treatment for Catarrh S. S. S. Removes the Cause

Specialists in Catarrh troubles have agreed that it is an infection of the blood. The laboratories of the S. S. S. Co., at Atlanta, have proven it. Once you get your blood free from impurities—cleansed of the Catarrh poisons which it is now a prey to because of its unhealthy state—then you will be relieved of Catarrh—the dripping in the throat, hawking and spit-ting, raw sores in the nostrils, and the disagreeable bad breath. It was in the first place, because your impoverished blood was easily infected. Possibly a slight cold or contact with someone who had a cold. But the point is—don't suffer with Catarrh—it is not necessary. The remedy S. S. S., discovered over fifty years ago, tested, true and tried, is always obtainable at any drug store. It has proven its value in thousands of cases. It will do so in your case. Get S. S. S. at once and begin treatment. If yours is a long standing case, be sure to write the S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga., for free expert medical advice. They will tell you how this purely vegetable blood tonic cleanses the impurities from the blood by literally washing it clean. They will prove to you that thousands of sufferers from Catarrh, after consistent treatment with S. S. S., have been freed from the trouble and all its disagreeable features and restored to perfect health and vigor. Don't delay the treatment. Take S. S. S. at once.

and turning, retraced my steps. As I passed the alley by the theater a man came running to me. He asked if I was the young man who had talked to his master. I said I was and he said Mr. Paderewski had changed his mind and wished to see me.

"Upon re-entering the theater I was met by Mr. Paderewski, who told me to come to his car and play. His carriage passed me as I plunged through a heavy snow, struggling to find my way to the depot in time. This was good for me, for it kept my mind free from fear. I played, first one of Paderewski's favorites, then something from the French school, which he does not approve. As I played I could hear members of the party coming in from the adjoining apartment.

The Great Promise

"When I had finished Mr. Paderewski told me that I played well, and that he would try and interest some wealthy friends in my education. We parted then, and if that had been all I should have been very happy. But it was not. The following October Mr. Paderewski wrote me to come to New York and he would pay my way through the institute.

"For five whole years, and part of last winter, I studied in the Damrosch Institute. After that there was a recital, and perhaps you can guess how my heart thrilled upon recognizing the voice of Paderewski in the 'bravos' that followed the numbers."

Explaining his western trip, Mr. Johnson said that New York is now flooded with the flower of Europe's musical talent, driven out by the war, and that it seemed a favorable time to carry out a cherished plan of touring the middle west. He will return to New York later.

Cut His Hair

An interesting incident that accompanied Mr. Johnson's invasion of New York was based upon the strong likeness which exists between him and Paderewski. Upon meeting the master, Mr. Johnson was conscious of this likeness, and fearing his benefactor would think he affected it, decided to change his appearance. So he cut his hair short and vigorously trained it to part on one side. Later he learned that this change was a source of disappointment

ment to Paderewski, so he let his hair behave as nature had trained it.

The "Sad-eyed" Boy

For a long time Mr. Johnson had attributed Mr. Paderewski's change of mind at the theater the night he called him back to the appeal of Mrs. Paderewski, but months afterward a piano tuner in the company of Paderewski told him that after the dismissal the face of the sad-eyed boy would not be dismissed from his mind and he was irresistibly impelled to send for him.

"And to think," laughed Mr. Johnson, "that just because I had held his hand, that was the happiest moment in the life of the sad-eyed boy."

USE POSLAM THE GREAT AID TO SKIN HEALTH

To allay itching and treat Eczema, Pimples, Rashes and other skin troubles, apply Poslam.

Use it whenever the skin ails—it will prove to you over and over again how much it will do towards eradicating disfigurements and correcting diseased surface conditions.

Its pacifying effect on inflamed irritated skin is widely known. Undue redness often disappears over night and its efficacy in clearing complexion and causing the disappearance of pimples is generally recognized.

And if ordinary soaps irritate your skin try Poslam Soap, medicated with Poslam and superior for daily use.

For samples, send 4c stamps to Emergency Laboratories, 32 West 25th St., New York City. Sold by all Druggists.

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.
